

The Honors College Spring 2025 Courses

In an honors course, you'll get the facts and something more - an invitation to dig deep and think critically. Honors courses tend to be smaller, more in depth, and designed to spark individual exploration.

Signature Seminars (HNRS 401H3) are three-credit-hour interdisciplinary seminars taught by top professors and provide an in-depth exploration of cutting-edge topics in a variety of fields.

Term	Course Title	Faculty	Notes
Spring	Cancer and Chronic Disease in the American Healthcare Ecosystem	Tim Muldoon (ENGR)	Application required
Spring	Animal Minds	Ed Minar (ARSC)	Application required

Forums (HNRS 300H1) are one-credit-hour courses that bring star faculty and top administrators together with honors students to deeply examine trending topics.

Term	Course Title	Faculty	Notes
Spring	Education Reform for Arkansas and the World	Patrick Wolf, Jonathan Wai, Josh McGee and COEHP Faculty
Spring	Walmart	Matthew Waller (WCOB)
Spring	Science Communications	Andy Albertson (UREL)
Spring	Partisanship	Noah Pittman (HNRC)	Application required
Spring	Disability Studies	Lisa Corrigan (ARSC)

Retro Readings (HNRS 301H1) are one-credit-hour courses in which students receive a "Great Books" experience to view a classic works through a contemporary lens.

Term	Course Title	Faculty	Notes
Spring	Reading Machiavelli's Prince	Freddy Dominguez (ARSC)
Spring	The Rhetoric of Black Radicalism	Jarvis Young (ARSC)
Spring	The -ISM Seminar	Lynda Coon (HNRC)

Honors Trajectory (various) are one-credit-hour courses help students make the most of their honors experience as they both envision and prepare for life after undergrad.

Term	Course Title	Faculty	Notes
Spring	Law School	Andrew Dowdle (ARSC) and Louise Hancox (HNRC)	Application required
Spring	Med School	Mack Ivey (ARSC) and Jonathan Langley (HNRC)	Application required
S8W1	Catapult	Suzanne McCray (ONCA)
S8W1	Inspired: A Journey into the Creative Process	Sandy Edwards (UDEV)	Application required

YOUR STORY.
YOUR HONORS.

